

LIST OF FIGURES

Illustrations by Lingsang Kalsang Dorjee:

Figs. 151–156, 158, 184, 280, 281, 285, 293–295, 300–302, 307, 308, 310, 311, 315, 318, 322, 323, 328, 330, 334, 335, 338–342, 358, 361, 383.

Illustrations by Lhade Tenpa:

Figs. 118, 119, 136, 137, 159, 161, 164, 165, 187, 193, 194, 211, 367.

Illustration by Shargan Wangdu:

Fig. 382.

Part I

- Fig. 1. A well-developed corbelling technique, gZims-phug (B-31)
- Fig. 2. An in situ corbel among some that have collapsed, mTsho-do (B-131)
- Fig. 3. Intact corbelling and bridging stones, Phug-chen (B-27)
- Fig. 4. Socketed corbels at the floor-ceiling juncture, Phug-tsho grog-po rdzong (B-6)
- Fig. 5. Corbelling inserted into sockets, dBang-phyug mgon-po mkhar (A-51)
- Fig. 6. The second-level complex, Ge-khod mkhar-lung (A-89)
- Fig. 7. The stacking of all-stone structures, Phug-tsho grog-po rdzong (A-10)
- Fig. 8. DK2, Ba-lu mkhar (A-102)
- Fig. 9. An all-stone corbelled lower story, dBang-phyug mgon-po mkhar (A-51)
- Fig. 10. The all-stone corbelled dependency in which a wood sample for radiometric analysis was obtained, Ge-khod mkhar-lung (A-89)
- Fig. 11. An adobe structure in the midst of stone structures, Lug-ri sna-kha (A-92)
- Fig. 12. Upper facility at sKabs-ren gyang-gog (A-33)
- Fig. 13. Lower complex, mKhar-ru mkhar-gog (A-85)
- Fig. 14. sPo-sa mkhar-gog (A-84)
- Fig. 15. Overview of rGyu-mgul mkhar (A-60)
- Fig. 16. East complex, dPa'-ngar gzhung khang-gog (A-31)
- Fig. 17. Lower and middle complexes, Brag-phug (A-35)
- Fig. 18. Coursed-rubble texture walls, west complex, Gra-rong mon-rdzong (A-21)
- Fig. 19. Deeply recessed entrance to Nag-gtsug mkhar (A-57)
- Fig. 20. The broad inset entrance to Ha-la mkhar West (A-58)
- Fig. 21. The sprawling south summit of Lung-phug (A-112)
- Fig. 22. Upper complex, Nag-ra rdzong (A-80)
- Fig. 23. Dispersed structures of rDzong nag (A-2)
- Fig. 24. The single line of buildings at rTsa-ma (A-36)
- Fig. 25. Axial corridor at Ma-ñi thang-mkhar (A-121)
- Fig. 26. Mar-dkar byu-ru mkhar (A-119)
- Fig. 27. Brag-dkar mkhar (A-120)
- Fig. 28. A small portion of what was probably an all-stone dependency, Ba-lu mkhar (rTsa-rang) (A-134)
- Fig. 29. Northern portion of the all-stone upper complex, Phi'a mkhar (A-101)

- Fig. 30. The prolific use of cobbles in the ruins of the north summit, Lung-phug (A-112)
- Fig. 31. The remnants of stone foundations at mKhar-sngon (A-56)
- Fig. 32. Prominent stone foundations on the summit of Phug mkhar (A-133)
- Fig. 33. The great Buddhist citadel at rTsa-rang (A-62)
- Fig. 34. Ha-la mkhar East (A-58)
- Fig. 35. Ma-nam mkhar West (B-77)
- Fig. 36. mKhar chung (A-136)
- Fig. 37. The remains of the citadel perched on the summit of sBe-ra phug (A-77)
- Fig. 38. Ruined cave settlements in the formations of Lung-phug (A-112) and Cho-lo phug (A-113)
- Fig. 39. Ancient cave habitations at Rag-kha-shag mon gyi mkhar (A-115)
- Fig. 40. The remains of a ma-ñi wall cutting across the mDo-gsham mon gyi yul site (A-111)
- Fig. 41. A row of ruined mchod-rten and other Buddhist structures at rGyu-mgul mkhar (A-60)
- Fig. 42. The rammed earth wall on the summit of sTag-la mkhar (A-81)
- Fig. 43. The rammed earth structure at Zhing-mkhar mkhar-gog (A-22)
- Fig. 44. The large rammed earth structure at Byang-stang mkhar (A-116)
- Fig. 45. The lone rammed earth structure, north complex, Shar-lang mkhar (A-118)
- Fig. 46. Rooms excavated in the summit of Cho-lo phug (A-113)
- Fig. 47. A highly eroded earthen slab-wall at Ra-kha-shag mon gyi mkhar (A-115)
- Fig. 48. A long defensive wall on the east spur of gNam rdzong (A-48)
- Fig. 49. A rampart network on the west formation of sTag-gzig nor-rdzong (A-50)
- Fig. 50. A finely constructed rampart on the west formation of sTag-gzig nor-rdzong (A-50)
- Fig. 51. The remains of stone walls on the summit of a crag, Do dril-bu (B-13)
- Fig. 52. The vestiges of an extensive network of defense walls, mKhar dkar (A-109)
- Fig. 53. A portion of the ramparts arrayed below the summit of Dung-dkar mkhar-gog (A-70)
- Fig. 54. One section of the encircling ramparts at the upper complex of Brag-gdong (A-18)
- Fig. 55. A piece of the circumvallating defensive wall on the rim of Chu-mkhar gyam (A-40)
- Fig. 56. The curtain wall connecting different loci of defensive buildings, Glog-phug mkhar (A-19)
- Fig. 57. The remains of a curtain wall and a vertical series of ramparts, Ser-mdzod rdzong (A-12)
- Fig. 58. The upper stronghold complex of Shang klu'i pho-brang (A-14)
- Fig. 59. The lower and upper sites of sKabs-ren (A-33)
- Fig. 60. Three crags with residential ruins at the upper site of Sra-brten mkhar (A-71)
- Fig. 61. The upper and lower residential sites of sPo-sa mkhar-gog (A-84)
- Fig. 62. A view of the lower and upper sites of mKhar-po che (A-86)
- Fig. 63. Ma-ñi-thang mkhar (A-121)
- Fig. 64. A better-preserved building foundation, lower site, mKhar-po che (A-86)
- Fig. 65. The carcass of a domicile established below the hilltop citadel of sPo-sa mkhar-gog (A-85)
- Fig. 66. Southwest rdo-khang, sTag-chen (B-29)
- Fig. 67. DK6, Do dril-bu (B-130)
- Fig. 68. Dar-chen khang-khrog (B-57)
- Fig. 69. The massive adobe hulk at Gog-rtse khang-dmar (B-75)
- Fig. 70. Bu-mo lha-khang (B-87)
- Fig. 71. The east side of Bu-mo lha-khang (B-87)
- Fig. 72. Structure B1 on the summit of Brag-sgam rdzong (B-40)
- Fig. 73. Structure B3, Brag-sgam rdzong (B-40)
- Fig. 74. The west sector of Lung-ngag (B-80)

- Fig. 75. A typical structure at sDe-chos bskaI-mon yul (B-81)
- Fig. 76. A partial view of the dispersion at Khog-ra (B-71)
- Fig. 77. The dispersion at Grong-dkar (B-85)
- Fig. 78. The Buddhist center in close proximity to Klu-mo pho-brang mon-dur (A-47)
- Fig. 79. Sha-ba brag (A-3)
- Fig. 80. The Buddhist monastery of gZims-phug
- Fig. 81. A view of bKra-shis do (J-1, J-2) from an outlier of the gNyan-chen thang-lha range
- Fig. 82. The shrine of the Rol-pa skya-bdun, bKra-shis do-chung (J-1)
- Fig. 83. The Klu-khang at Se-mo do South (B-126)
- Fig. 84. The ruined abode and stone structures of Bra-gu ngom-ngan, Se-mo do West (B-127)
- Fig. 85. One of the funerary structures at Ma-mig brag-dkar North (B-109)
- Fig. 86. The ridge-top ruins of Sha-ba brag (A-3)
- Fig. 87. A building with an all-stone corbelled roof, Shel-'dra (B-113)
- Fig. 88. A-phug (B-115)
- Fig. 89. Lha-lung sgrub-phug (B-94)
- Fig. 90. Ancient remains at sGo-bdag (B-93)
- Fig. 91. The remains of the three-story-tall cave façade at Sog-po (B-60)
- Fig. 92. The ruined façade at Brag-'khor sgang (B-108)
- Fig. 93. The remains of anterooms and façades at two of the caves of dGon-ro dmar-lding (B-120)
- Fig. 94. The exterior wall of an anteroom, Am-nag (B-92)
- Fig. 95. rGwa-lo phug, Se-mo do South (B-126)
- Fig. 96. Remains of structures at Bra-gu ngom-ngan's residence, Se-mo do West (B-127)
- Fig. 97. An extensive series of anterooms connected to caves, rDzong dkar-po (B-107)
- Fig. 98. The all-stone corbelled roof of a Dzong dkar-po anteroom (B-107)
- Fig. 99. A stone wall bonded with wood in the bTsag-tig residential structure (B-110)
- Fig. 100. An all-stone residence built under an overhang, Shel-'dra (B-113)
- Fig. 101. The exterior walls of Shod-tram phug (B-116)
- Fig. 102. The retaining wall at A-phug (B-115)
- Fig. 103. The outlying walls of Lha-lung sgrub-phug (B-94)
- Fig. 104. A portion of the Sog-po site (B-60)
- Fig. 105. The remains of a footing, mThong-grol brag (B-100)
- Fig. 106. A panel of pictographs at rDzong pi-phi (A-49)
- Fig. 107. The remains of the large and well-built façade, sGar-gsol brag-phug (B-119)
- Fig. 108. The cave complex at Phyi-dbang, in Gu-ge
- Fig. 109. Cave complex at Khyung-lung yul-smad
- Fig. 110. The exterior of the Buddhist hermitage of Khwa-rtse
- Fig. 111. rDo-mi-lang (C-36)
- Fig. 112. Mar-mchod rdo-ring (C-14)
- Fig. 113. The pillar at Mon-bu (B-125)
- Fig. 114. Chos-'khor rdo-ring (C-25)
- Fig. 115. A collapsed row of pillars that once stood at rGyab-lung rdo-ring (C-13)
- Fig. 116. A row of eight pillars and two other specimens, rDza-tshogs rdo-ring (C-28)
- Fig. 117. Tomb MD3, sNa-ra mon-dur (D-72)
- Fig. 118. Pillars erected inside an enclosure; a reconstruction of the basal elements
- Fig. 119. A pillar erected inside an enclosure; a reconstruction of the basal elements
- Fig. 120. gNyer-ma gyam rdo-ring (C-136)
- Fig. 121. Nang-chu rdo-ring (C-90)
- Fig. 122. The many pillars erected inside an enclosure at Ro-khung (C-167)

- Fig. 123. The east complex, rGya-steng 'bur rdo-ring (C-111)
- Fig. 124. Na-ma lung rdo-ring (C-76)
- Fig. 125. rDo-ring nag-kha (C-113)
- Fig. 126. South complex, dPal-mo rdo-ring (C-67)
- Fig. 127. Chu-phug rdo-ring (C-62)
- Fig. 128. The enclosure at Khyi'u dur-khrod (C-112)
- Fig. 129. Tshogs-gsum rdo-ring (C-165)
- Fig. 130. 'Byams-ri rdo-ring (C-115)
- Fig. 131. A double-course slab-wall, Ma-'byang rdo-ring (C-52)
- Fig. 132. A double-course slab-wall, rDo-ring lcags-ra (C-74)
- Fig. 133. The east site, Pe-gya rdo-ring (C-60)
- Fig. 134. The west complex, rGya-steng 'bur rdo-ring (C-111)
- Fig. 135. The two pillar enclosures of Ro-khung (C-167)
- Fig. 136. A small array of pillars appended to an edifice; a reconstruction of the basal elements
- Fig. 137. A large array of pillars appended to an edifice; a reconstruction of the basal elements
- Fig. 138. A single-course slab structure, Byi-ri sbug (C-164)
- Fig. 139. The tower complex, Yul kham-bu (C-143)
- Fig. 140. The so-called palace of A-stag klu-mo, Sha-sha dpal-khang (C-145)
- Fig. 141. An L-shaped temple-tomb, lower north complex, Yul kham-bu (C-143)
- Fig. 142. A temple-tomb with a modified T-shaped plan, upper south complex, Yul kham-bu (C-143)
- Fig. 143. Funerary superstructures, rKyang-rtswa mdo gyang-ro (C-148)
- Fig. 144. Funerary structure MD8, Pags-mthug (C-158)
- Fig. 145. The remains of an array of pillars appended to an edifice, Gangs-chen rdo-ring (C-156)
- Fig. 146. rDo-ring (C-162)
- Fig. 147. The remains of an array of sandstone pillars, sKyid-gser (C-161)
- Fig. 148. Pillars erected inside an enclosure at sKyid-gser (C-161)
- Fig. 149. The central complex, Khang-dmar rdza-shag (C-160)
- Fig. 150. Tomb MD2, Khang-dmar rdza-shag (C-160)
- Fig. 151. Ancient copper alloy mirrors
- Fig. 152. Ancient metallic hangings
- Fig. 153. Small bell-shaped copper alloy objects
- Fig. 154. Tibetan thog-lcags specimens
- Fig. 155. Small adorned copper alloy rings
- Fig. 156. Small copper alloy wild ungulate figurines
- Fig. 157. Anthropomorphous visages on two Tibetan thog-lcags
- Fig. 158. Copper alloy button-like objects
- Fig. 159. Tashtyk kurgans and pillars at the Uibat-Tschaatas site
- Fig. 160. Do dril-bu domestic rdo-ring (B-13)
- Fig. 161. A single-course enclosure of upright stones; a reconstruction of the basal elements
- Fig. 162. Funerary structure, MD3, Zangs-gdong mon-do (C-170)
- Fig. 163. Funerary structure MD1, Shag-sde mon-dur (D-111)
- Fig. 164. A double-course enclosure of upright stones; a reconstruction of the basal elements
- Fig. 165. A double-course enclosure of blocky stones laid flat; a reconstruction of the basal elements
- Fig. 166. Funerary structure MD2, Dzi-brtan mon-dur (D-43)
- Fig. 167. The remains of a double-course enclosure at Lu-ma brag mon-dur (D-53)
- Fig. 168. Funerary structure MD7, Grib-ra mon-dur (D-62)

- Fig. 169. The giant enclosure at rTsi-rtsid mon-ra'i thang-kha (D-125)
- Fig. 170. The funerary enclosure at Rag-sder (D-114)
- Fig. 171. Funerary structure MD3, rDo-rje rdzong (D-93)
- Fig. 172. Multiple-course slab perimeter walls, Nag-ra mon-dur (D-45)
- Fig. 173. Multi-course slab-wall remnants, MD1, 'Bum gtor-mchog mon-dur (D-107)
- Fig. 174. Multiple slabs embedded in the ground, MD5, rDo-rje rdzong (D-93)
- Fig. 175. A part of the sub-rectangular enclosure at Nag-ra brag-seng mon-dur (D-57)
- Fig. 176. Funerary structure MD3, bTsog gi mon-dur (D-91)
- Fig. 177. An enclosure at rTsi-rtsid mon-ra'i thang-kha (D-125)
- Fig. 178. Some of the large cobblestone enclosures, Chu-nag rdo-ring (C-121)
- Fig. 179. Structure MR10, Brag gtsang-po (D-41)
- Fig. 180. Interconnected funerary enclosures in the upper sector of dPal-mo rdo-ring (C-67)
- Fig. 181. Funerary structure MD4, Zangs-gdong mon-rdo (C-170)
- Fig. 182. A three-sided lithic assembly near MD11, bTsog gi mon-dur (D-91)
- Fig. 183. The four-sided lithic assembly at Rag-sder (D-114)
- Fig. 184. Various types of funerary superstructures of the Slab Grave culture
- Fig. 185. Funerary structure MK6, Gyam-nag mon-khang (D-59)
- Fig. 186. The ransacked funerary structure MK3, Gyam-nag mon-khang (D-59)
- Fig. 187. A heaped stone enclosure; a reconstruction of the basal elements
- Fig. 188. A heaped stone enclosure at 'Dzog-gdong (D-32)
- Fig. 189. Destroyed burial chambers of rDzong-chen, Mon-ra yar-rked (D-24)
- Fig. 190. A funerary superstructure at rTa-ra mon-ra (D-105)
- Fig. 191. A heaped-wall funerary superstructure, north complex 1, rTsid-ra mon-dur (D-13)
- Fig. 192. The bang-so at gNyan-dmar (D-54)
- Fig. 193. A large bang-so with cruciform walls on top; a reconstruction of the basal elements
- Fig. 194. A small burial mound with double-course walls; a reconstruction of the basal elements
- Fig. 195. Large burial mounds at rDe'u-rug (D-99)
- Fig. 196. One of several sizable bang-so at Nya (D-100)
- Fig. 197. A burial mound at sGog-ri (D-82)
- Fig. 198. The single bang-so at Rong-lung (D-76)
- Fig. 199. The large bang-so at 'Or-mo sgang (D-40)
- Fig. 200. The big bang-so at rDo-ring bar-ma (D-119)
- Fig. 201. The largest burial mound at Chu-nag rdo-ring (C-121)
- Fig. 202. The most prominent funerary structure at Chad-phu mon-ra (D-126)
- Fig. 203. A truncated funerary tumulus with cruciform walls, mChod-rten brgya-ba (D-6)
- Fig. 204. The largest burial mound at Mer-btum pis-ma (C-65)
- Fig. 205. Terraced funerary structure DK17, rGyal-mtshan mthon-po (D-77)
- Fig. 206. Terraced funerary structure DK123, dKar-khug (D-74)
- Fig. 207. The cemetery of dKar-khug (D-74)
- Fig. 208. Some of the many funerary superstructures at dGon-ro (D-75)
- Fig. 209. Terraced funerary structure MD5, sKal-dra mon-dur (D-66)
- Fig. 210. A terrace 7 m long at Gyam-chung mon-dur (E-16)
- Fig. 211. A mountaintop cubic tomb; a reconstruction of the basal elements
- Fig. 212. The mostly leveled cubic tomb MD3, rTa-rgan gyam-sna-ri (E-25)
- Fig. 213. Cubic tombs perched on a rocky ridge top, 'A-lhas mon-dur (E-30)
- Fig. 214. Funerary structure MD2, bKra-shis dar-lung (E-10)
- Fig. 215. The large funerary structure sitting on the summit of rGya-rug mon-dur (E-20)
- Fig. 216. The heavily degraded quadrangle structure on the summit of Phye-ri thal-rdzong (E-22)
- Fig. 217. The walkway on the east side of the summit, An 'bri-rtse mon-dur (E-11)

- Fig. 218. An enclosure and cubic tombs, 'A-lhas mon-dur (E-30)
- Fig. 219. A small central depository in cubic tomb MD7, rTa-rgan gyam-sna-ri (E-25)
- Fig. 220. A large central depository in a mountaintop cubic tomb, lDan byang-ri smug-po gdong (E-18)
- Fig. 221. Twin cubic shrines, Do dril-bu (B-13)
- Fig. 222. Main shrine complex, Do rta-sga East (B-128)
- Fig. 223. Largest shrine structure at Se-mo do South (B-126)
- Fig. 224. The remains of a cubic shrine, Se-mo do West (B-127)
- Fig. 225. A tho known as Srid-pa'i mthon-po (Heights of Existence), Ri-rgyal (E-6)
- Fig. 226. This rock outcrop appears to be called sKyung-ka nag-gtsug (Black Top Chough)
- Fig. 227. A ceremonial structure painted in ochre and lime (?), Lha-khang dmar-chag (B-101)
- Fig. 228. The ceremonial structure in Lower East VII cave, gNas kun-bzang (B-91)
- Fig. 229. A shrine in the southeast sector of mKhar dkar (A-109)
- Fig. 230. The ceremonial structure in a first-level residence, Ge-khod mkhar-lung (A-89)
- Fig. 231. A ceremonial structure with a small opening, Do rta-sga East (B-128)
- Fig. 232. Three deep recesses built into the rear wall of residential structure DK2, Do rta-sga East (B-128)
- Fig. 233. The twin entrances to underground chambers, Ge-khod mkhar-lung (A-89)
- Fig. 234. Shrine built partly in the ground, sPu-gling yul-stong (B-83)
- Fig. 235. The upper edifice, Khang-pa dmar-gog (B-39)
- Fig. 236. The remains of a circular structure, Gyang-pa'i gtsug-rdzong (A-9)
- Fig. 237. Structure II, dPa'-ngar gzhung khang-gog (F-1)
- Fig. 238. Gu-ru 'bum-pa (F-2)
- Fig. 239. Stepped structure of dGon-ro dmar-lding (B-120)
- Fig. 240. The shrine of rTa-mgo me-'bar (Blazing Horse-Headed One), Ru-thog
- Fig. 241. Khyi-nag 'bubs (F-3)
- Fig. 242. The walled enclosure at Khyi-nag 'bubs (F-3)
- Fig. 243. Ra-la mkhar-dmar, an early capital of the Gu-ge Buddhist kingdom
- Fig. 244. Herringbone stonework at Gyam-smug mkhar (A-68)
- Fig. 245. Courses of stones placed horizontally and vertically, mGar-gtsang mkhar (A-98)
- Fig. 246. The contour of the ancient irrigation channel at Ba'am dgon-ltag (B-1)
- Fig. 247. A segment of the irrigation channel at Lu-sngon (G-3)
- Fig. 248. The sDe-chos valley, Ru-thog
- Fig. 249. Part of a deserted agricultural sector, mTsher-lung, Ru-thog
- Fig. 250. A view of long-abandoned fields in the lower She-rang valley, Ru-thog
- Fig. 251. The defunct agricultural settlement of Sa-rā (B-50)
- Fig. 252. Defunct agricultural parcels at the ruined 'Mon' settlement of Zhing-ka gong (B-72)
- Fig. 253. The mostly abandoned agricultural lands of bKra-shis sgang, sGar
- Fig. 254. Agricultural parcels at mKhar-gog rdo-rje g.yu-sgron-ma (A-124)
- Fig. 255. Ko-logs mkhar (A-125)
- Fig. 256. The abandoned farmlands of gDong-po 'og-ma, Gu-ge
- Fig. 257. The forgotten agricultural settlement of dNgos-g.yu, Gu-ge
- Fig. 258. A derelict agricultural enclave near Phug mkhar (A-133), Gu-ge
- Fig. 259. 'Mon' agricultural lands located near Mon-mkhar ser-nag (A-30)
- Fig. 260. The old arable land holdings of Zhing-lung (Farm Valley) (C-80)
- Fig. 261. The abandoned agricultural settlement of rTsa-lung, near Rwa-skye brag (B-7)
- Fig. 262. The rubble-strewn interior of 'Brug-mo'i sbra-yas (H-1)
- Fig. 263. The earthworks of rKyang-rag kha-gog (H-2)
- Fig. 264. An outer wall of Yar-lang (H-3)

- Fig. 265. The highly eroded walls of 'Bri-lam (H-4)
- Fig. 266. A polychrome ceremonial structure and other pictographs, Ra-ma do (J-4)
- Fig. 267. The polychrome mchod-rten of Brag-khung mdzes-po (J-9)
- Fig. 268. One of the caves on the south side of sGo-bdag (B-93)
- Fig. 269. An extremely rare image of the Zhang-zhung snyan-rgyud master Ta-pi hri-tsa, Lha-khang dmar-chag (B-101)
- Fig. 270. Pictographs scrawled on the walls of a Bon cave hermitage, Lha-khang dmar-chag (B-101)
- Fig. 271. A yak carved on a funerary enclosure, Rwa-'brog 'phrang-sgo (D-17)
- Fig. 272. A polychrome rdo-rje, O-rtsal phug (J-17)
- Fig. 273. Clockwise and counterclockwise swastikas in white pigment, rTa-ra dmar-lding (B-124)
- Fig. 274. Red ochre pictographs, Lha-ris brag-phug (J-12)
- Fig. 275. A counterclockwise swastika and Buddhist inscription, bShag-bsangs (I-16)
- Fig. 276. A sunburst of nine rays, rGyab-lung (I-27)
- Fig. 277. A conjoined sunburst and crescent moon pictograph, bShags-bsangs (I-16)
- Fig. 278. Petroglyphs of the sNgon-gdong site, rGya-gling (I-15)
- Fig. 279. Pyramidal niche, bKra-shis do-chen (J-2)
- Fig. 280. A flaming jewels symbol and conjoined sun and moon, bKra-shis do-chung (J-1)
- Fig. 281. The flaming jewels and a Bon mantra, bKra-shis do-chung (J-1)
- Fig. 282. A red ochre yak in the middle of older hunting scenes, lCe-do (J-7)
- Fig. 283. Two wild yaks, Ri-rgyal (I-2)
- Fig. 284. A lone wild yak, bShag-bsangs (I-16)
- Fig. 285. A wild yak, rTa-ri brag-phug (I-22)
- Fig. 286. A stag, counterclockwise swastika and teardrop motif, bShag-bsangs (I-16)
- Fig. 287. A stag with its head swung backwards, mTha' kham-pa ri (I-28)
- Fig. 288. A caprid with spiraling horns, sKabs-ren spungs-ri (I-3)
- Fig. 289. A lone onager, Ri-rgyal (I-2)
- Fig. 290. A galloping horse, 'Jam-dbyangs phug, bKra-shis do-chung (J-1)
- Fig. 291. Mating wild yaks, Brag-gdong (I-6)
- Fig. 292. Mating wild yaks, mTha' kham-pa ri (I-28)
- Fig. 293. An antelope with double volute ornamentation, Rwa-'brog 'phrang (I-1)
- Fig. 294. An antelope, wild caprid and stag (petroglyph), Rwa-'brog 'phrang (I-1)
- Fig. 295. An antelope petroglyph executed using a curvilinear schema, Rwa-'brog 'phrang (I-1)
- Fig. 296. A striped carnivore chasing a wild ungulate, Rwa-'brog 'phrang (I-1)
- Fig. 297. Two long-tailed carnivores, sKabs-ren spungs-ri (I-3)
- Fig. 298. Two dancing carnivores, a stag and other figures, bKra-shis do-chen (J-2)
- Fig. 299. A bowman, quadruped and Bactrian camel, mChod-rten-sbug sna-kha (I-20)
- Fig. 300. A figure leading two camels, Brag phying-gur phug, bKra-shis do chen (J-2)
- Fig. 301. Two raptors with outstretched wings and other figures, gNam-g.yang phug (J-11)
- Fig. 302. A raptor, bShag-bsangs (I-16)
- Fig. 303. A raptor and carnivore, rGyab-lung (I-27)
- Fig. 304. A raptor with a broad pyramidal tail, bShag-bsangs (I-16)
- Fig. 305. An aquatic bird, Rwa-'brog 'phrang (I-1)
- Fig. 306. A view of red ochre pictographs at lCe do (J-7)
- Fig. 307. A copper alloy ritual implement with an engraved deer and two other ungulates
- Fig. 308. A ritualized hunting scene: bowman and wild ungulate (petroglyph), sNgo-sog (I-29)
- Fig. 309. A raptor leading an anthropomorphous figure, sGrol-ma phug, bKra-shis do-chung (J-1)

- Fig. 310. A rock panel with various figures at Ra-'brog 'phrang (I-1)
- Fig. 311. An archer on foot pursuing a wild yak (petroglyph), Ri-rgyal (I-2)
- Fig. 312. A mounted archer confronting a wild yak (petroglyph), Ri-rgyal (I-2)
- Fig. 313. Archers on foot and on horseback hunting wild yaks, rGyab-lung (I-27)
- Fig. 314. A standing bowman coming in for the kill of a wild caprid, sNgo-sog (I-29)
- Fig. 315. A bowman stalking a stag (pictograph), Brag-dkar, bKra-shis do-chen (J-2)
- Fig. 316. A pair of mounted archers attacking two wild ungulates, Klu-khang, bKra-shis do-chen (J-2)
- Fig. 317. An anthropomorphous pair, sGog-ra (I-5)
- Fig. 318. Two anthropomorphous figures, mTha' kham-pa (I-28)
- Fig. 319. An anthropomorphous dyad, mTha' kham-pa (I-28)
- Fig. 320. A close-up of the upper female figure, mTha' kham-pa (I-28)
- Fig. 321. A squatting anthropomorphous figure, Rwa-'brog 'phrang (I-1)
- Fig. 322. The bram-ze of sGar-gsol brag-phug (J-16)
- Fig. 323. Contesting figures on horseback, Zhwa-dmar phug, bKra-shis do-chung (J-1)
- Fig. 324. Dueling figures, Chu-lung (I-10)
- Fig. 325. A ritual scene with participants holding weapons, sNgo-sog (I-26)
- Fig. 326. A panel of animals and anthropomorphs, Brag-gtsug (I-25)
- Fig. 327. The head of a wrathful figure, sGar-gsol brag-phug (J-16)
- Fig. 328. An anthropomorph and stag (petroglyph), Gri'u-thang (I-9)
- Fig. 329. An anthropomorph with arms held akimbo, Ra-'brog 'phrang (I-1)
- Fig. 330. A lone anthropomorph carved in an angular style, sNgo-sog (I-29)
- Fig. 331. A figure with a sling, sNgon-gdong site, rGya-gling (I-15)
- Fig. 332. Two anthropomorphous figures, Ra-'brog 'phrang (I-1)
- Fig. 333. A house and anthropomorphous figure, Brag phying-gur phug, bKra-shis do-chen (J-2)
- Fig. 334. An archaic ceremonial structure (pictograph), Slob-dpon phug (J-14)
- Fig. 335. A unique ceremonial structure (petroglyph), gNa'-bo lung (I-26)
- Fig. 336. An archaic ceremonial structure, bShag-bsangs (I-16)
- Fig. 337. An archaic ceremonial structure, Rwa-'brog 'phrang (I-1)
- Fig. 338. A red ochre mchod-rten, Brag phying-gur phug, bKra-shis do-chen (J-2)
- Fig. 339. A mchod-rten (petroglyph), Brag-gyam (I-24)
- Fig. 340. One of the many carved mchod-rten at Brag-gyam (I-24)
- Fig. 341. A red ochre mchod-rten and swastika, bKra-shis do-chung (J-1)
- Fig. 342. Three mchod-rten or rten-mkhar and other motifs, sGar-gsol brag-phug (J-16)
- Fig. 343. A well-carved mchod-rten, Brag-gdong (I-6)
- Fig. 344. A Bon mchod-rten in red ochre, bKra-shis rtags-brgyad phug, bKra-shis do-chung (J-1)
- Fig. 345. A mchod-rten with the bya-ru bya-gri finial, mChod-rten sbug sna-kha (I-20)
- Fig. 346. A mchod-rten with the all-seeing eyes of the Buddha, Rwa-'brog 'phrang (I-1)
- Fig. 347. A highly intricate Buddhist mchod-rten carving, rGyal la lding (I-32)
- Fig. 348. An inscription, Brag-gyam (I-24)
- Fig. 349. An inscription, sNgo-sog (I-26)
- Fig. 350. An early historic period inscription, sNgo-sog (I-26)
- Fig. 351. Two specimens of the Tibetan letter A, bKra-shis do-chung (J-1)
- Fig. 352. The Bon letter A, dGon-ro dmar-lding (B-120)
- Fig. 353. An archaic Tibetan inscription, bKra-shis do-chung (J-1)
- Fig. 354. A red ochre pa-tra (36 cm in length) and ma-ñi mantra, Se-mo do South (B-126)
- Fig. 355. Swastikas of Lha-'dre phug (J-19)
- Fig. 356. A counterclockwise swastika painted at rTa-ra dmar-lding (B-124)

- Fig. 357. A striped carnivore, Rwa-'brog 'phrang (I-1)
 Fig. 358. Gamboling deer with S-shaped ornamentation, Rwa-'brog 'phrang (I-1)
 Fig. 359. A wild yak with S-shaped body ornamentation, rGyab-lung (I-27)
 Fig. 360. A deer with its legs tucked underneath its body, Brag-gdong (I-6)
 Fig. 361. Two deer depicted running or flying, bShag-bsangs (I-16)
 Fig. 362. Two wild yaks with horns forming full circles and ball-like tails, sNgo-sog (I-26)
 Fig. 363. Wild ungulates conceived on a rectilinear schema, sKabs-ren spungs-ri (I-3)
 Fig. 364. Two wild yaks, Rong rde'u-sna lhas, rGya-gling (I-15)
 Fig. 365. Wild yak with full circle horns and ball-like tail, bShag-bsangs (I-16)
 Fig. 366. A squatting anthropomorphous figure, Brag-gtsug (I-25)
 Fig. 367. Wheeled vehicle petroglyphs, bShag-bsangs (I-16) and rGya-gling (I-15)

Part II

- Fig. 368. Red ochre anthropomorph, sGar-gsol brag-phug (J-16)
 Fig. 369. The all-stone corbelled religious center of Ri'u dgon-pa (B-25)
 Fig. 370. The inner courtyard of Ri'u dgon-pa (B-25)
 Fig. 371. Phur-bu gyang-dmar (B-47)
 Fig. 372. A corbelled beehive arch, Phur-bu gyang-dmar (B-47)

Part III

- Fig. 373. An illustration of the castle gtad-g.yar used in the funerary rituals of sMan-ri monastery, Dolanji
 Fig. 374. A depiction of the food and beverages gtad-g.yar, sMan-ri monastery, Dolanji
 Fig. 375. An illustration of the ritual objects gtad-g.yar, sMan-ri monastery, Dolanji
 Fig. 376. A depiction of the horse gtad-g.yar, sMan-ri monastery, Dolanji
 Fig. 377. An illustration of the sheep gtad-g.yar, sMan-ri monastery, Dolanji
 Fig. 378. An illustration of the ornaments and weapons gtad-g.yar, sMan-ri monastery, Dolanji
 Fig. 379. A row of minor quadrangle structures, rTsi-rtsid mon-ra'i thang-kha (D-125)
 Fig. 380. A row of minor quadrangle structures, Khyi-nag 'bubs (F-3)
 Fig. 381. An ancient Tibetan bridle
 Fig. 382. Various components of the Tibetan bridle, and a spearhead
 Fig. 383. Altaian Scythian bridle components
 Fig. 384. Funerary horse ritual objects from kurgan I at Pazyryk I

