Dedicated to the waves made by the Habsburg Mediterranean

The publication of this volume has been an intellectual journey, which brought together a variety of people from different countries. As editors, we wish to acknowledge the support that we received throughout this journey. The Austrian Hospice welcomed the contributors of this volume and further conference participants in Jerusalem in September 2018 for a conference that took place under the auspices of Karl von Habsburg-Lothringen. We wish to express our gratitude to him as well as to his brother, Georg Habsburg-Lothringen, whose address of welcome has been published as a preface in this volume. Our warm thanks go to Markus Bugnyar and Bernadette Schwarz, Rector and Vice Rector of the Austrian Hospice, for their hospitality, generosity and curiosity. Days of thought-provoking debates were followed by months of research-driven conversations with this volume's contributors whom we wish to thank for their commitment. The Austrian Academy of Sciences provided support throughout the process of publication and anonymous reviewers shared their insights, comments and appraisal. Seeing this volume published by the Austrian Academy of Sciences is a special joy. Financial contribution to this volume was generously given by COST Action People in Motion: Entangled Histories of Displacement across the Mediterranean (1492–1923) (PIMo CA18140), supported by COST (European Cooperation in Science and Technology). This four-year global research project includes more than 100 researchers from 35 countries and is chaired by Prof Giovanni Tarantino and Dr Katrina O'Loughlin. We wish to acknowledge the generous assistance of PIMo and our deep gratitude for the guidance and support provided by Prof Giovanni Tarantino. This manuscript benefited from Helen McEwan's input, who took care of the final copy-editing of the volume. As editors, we furthermore owe special thanks to the History Department of The University of Manchester and The Warburg Institute, University of London, our home institutions and intellectual homes.
