

Table of Contents

Preface	9
---------------	---

Introduction

Wynfrid Kriegleder, Andrea Lindmayr-Brandl, and Werner Telesko Concepts of Nature and Landscape in Schubert's Time.	13
--	----

Landscape as Soundscape

Thomas Seedorf 'Natura sonans'. Nature in Schubert's Vocal Music	25
--	----

Markus Böggemann Landscape as Soundscape: Evoking Nature in Schubert's Songs with Obligato Instruments.	47
---	----

Ulrike Steierwald Loss of Frame through Fluidity: Eloquent Water in the Song Cycle Die schöne Müllerin	63
--	----

Cecily Cai "Halfway between Life and Death": The Schubertian Wanderer and the Landscape of Exile	87
---	----

Aesthetic, Economic, and Scientific Approaches to Nature

Emily Shyr Burning Tears, Floods, and Seething Torrents: Metaphors of the Natural Sublime in Winterreise	111
--	-----

Werner Telesko

The Interest in the Seemingly Trivial:

Microscopic Awareness in the Landscape Art of the Vormärz Period 139

Stephanie O'Rourke

Joseph Anton Koch and the Extractive Landscape 159

Elizabeth Millán Brusslan

Alexander von Humboldt's Portrait of Nature:

The Blending of Art, Nature, and Landscape in Schubert's Time 179

Musical Case Studies

Tobias Lund

A Landscape for Mild Melancholy:

Franz Schubert's Die Nacht D 534 and the Question of

Virtue in Emotion and Reflection 205

Marlene Heiß

"Und das All ein einzig Chor" –

An Ecocritical Approach to Schubert/Schlegel's Abendröthe 229

Sebastian Schwenzfeuer

The Construction of the Romantic Subject in Schelling and Schubert:

An Analysis of the Song Der Wanderer an den Mond D 870. 253

Susan Youens

Night, Nature, and Forbidden Passion in a Schubert Song:

Bertas Lied in der Nacht D 653 271

List of Contributors 311

Index 317